Introduction

The main purpose of this exercise is to understand good and poor trades and learn from past trading mistakes. It helps me improve my trading skills, follow a proper trading plan, and make better entry and exit decisions.

Good Trade Evaluation

I considered Trade No. 2 as a good trade. I bought BTCUSD at $81,640 and sold it at $85,179, earning a profit of $35.39 with a return of 4.33%. This trade taught me the importance of following the long strategy, waiting for the planned price movement, and exiting the trade at the correct time.

Poor Trade Evaluation

Some earlier trades gave only small profits. This was mainly due to weak entry confirmation and unclear profit targets. From these trades, I learned that I should wait for stronger signals before entering and decide my entry and exit levels clearly.

Focused Trading Report

During this session, I completed 5 focused trades using the Combined Strategy. All 5 trades were BTCUSD long trades. I planned each trade before entering and followed my trading strategy carefully. I also avoided the mistakes made in earlier trades and successfully closed all 5 trades with profit.

Overall Reflection

This trading session helped me improve my discipline and planning. I followed my trading plan and avoided my previous mistakes. Although all 5 trades ended in profit, some profits were small. In future, I will focus on better entry timing, stronger confirmation, and clear profit targets to improve my trading performance.
